

Over the past few month students attending RCSD Rome Tutorial Center have been working together with Shelley Turner and her staff at Turner Glass Art to create a community art project.

The community project is the creation of mosaic panels which would be adhered to the current cement planters (tree wells) which are located along West Liberty St. The entire project will take 4-5 months to complete (offsite) with the installation planned for the Spring/Summer of 2007. Each of the panels will be constructed of handmade ceramic tiles which will be made by the student participants.

Because we want this to be a true community project we are enlisting the help of other community members – that includes you! We are asking you to design a tile which we will include in the project. You have the option of coming in and creating your own tile or having the students create a tile using a design you have created!

I would like to create my own tile, please let me know when I can come by!

I would like the students to create my tile based on my design (see below)
